Forecast For Highland & Eilean Siar
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Thursday 23 Dec 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Rain at times today, far north mainly dry.

Today:
Cloudy this morning with some light and patchy rain. Cloudy this afternoon with persistent and widespread rain spreading northeast, although Caithness, Sutherland and perhaps Lewis remaining dry. Cold in the north and east still. Maximum temperature 6 deg C (43 deg F).

Tonight:
Caithness, Sutherland and perhaps Lewis will be mostly dry. Elsewhere a cloudy night with rain, this turning to snow over high ground with some accumulations. Minimum temperature 1 deg C (34 deg F).

Friday:
Rain and snow petering out in the morning to leave a dry afternoon. Some sunshine breaking through in the afternoon across the northwest. Frost quickly setting in by dusk. Maximum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
A mainly dry and cold few days with some sunshine. Chance of the odd wintry shower in the far north. Widespread overnight frost.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.